

Soul Embodiment of Multidimensionality and Synchronicity

The point of this article is to introduce to concept of multidimensionality and our higher and alternative selves. In connecting to these selves in our practices, we access other parts of who we are and the wholeness of who we are. It is also to inspire, to help you see your eternal soul nature and that you are tapping into the stream of that magnificence. It is an uncovering of aspects of you that are hidden like puzzle pieces of self, in the subconscious. ~Shivrael

I love the idea of a marriage within the body, a marriage of the self. It goes way beyond self-love. My friend described it as sacred marriage of self-awareness with the body. It is the multi-dimensional union of streams of self coming into the body. The body is the very essential in the process! It is the vessel, the anchor, the vehicle, the experiencer. Our bodies are so important. Being grounded to Mother Earth allows us to be more powerful. It allows us to express who we are through these blessed and beautiful physical vehicles. As an aside, it is my belief that we created ourselves before we incarnated. We created the shape, form, look, function of how this particular physical body. Back to the body being grounded and as a vessel for all these multidimensional streams. Receiving from the streams of consciousness, our ourselves, is really what this class is about, to deepen our guidance from all that we are. Cross communication with our soul, soul's essence, God, higher self, multidimensional selves. I consider channeling to be aspects of me and not separate as we are everything. And also, we, with these skills, can attune to any consciousness and express as that consciousness or archetype.

The body is what ties it all together. We could not do this multidimensional experiencing and anchoring multiple streams of ourselves without it. By multidimensional streams of self, I mean aspects of who we are. They may be happening in other dimensions. They may be past or future, though all is concurrent. There are different levels of ourselves that have different ways of experiencing the us that is us. On earth, we are hidden behind the veil but coming out of that. Marriage of the self, multidimensional self, also called divine union is the coming into knowing yourself beyond the veil. The veil makes most people think they are the physical body disconnected from other aspects, the higher self and oversoul, and creator source. The oversoul could be seen as a merged version of us as one being, a branch of source that is more unified and less individual as us. It could be seen a guiding and directing force, such as creator. And as these ideas are presented, let them be information for you to decide whether it works for you and what works for you! This course and experience is you getting guidance for you within your belief system. Whatever you call creator, however you see creator, and whatever words you use are perfect.

Another aspect of us has more access to our soul, to our knowing beyond the veil, the bigger picture. It is interesting to see how the non-physical aspects may have more knowing of the physical body human perspective. But when these aspects are all communicating with one another it is truly exciting! That is how we sometimes have knowing beyond what our mind knows. We have been receiving intuitive guidance and listening our entire lives. We access skills and frequencies from these other aspects of self. They receive from us and we receive from them, as a two way street. A communion. A communion is a coming into union.

What about synchronicity? Synchronicity is a really something more amazing than mere coincidence! Many of us love it when synchronicity happens. I love it, and it shows me when I am in the flow. I take it as massive good luck.

From Wikipedia, to explain what synchronicity is: Synchronicity is the occurrence of two or more events that appear to be meaningfully related but not causally related. Synchronicity holds that such events are "meaningful coincidences". The concept of synchronicity was, first defined by Carl Jung, a Swiss psychiatrist, in the 1920s. Synchronicity is a "acausal connecting (togetherness) principle," "meaningful coincidence," and "acausal parallelism." Synchronicity implies that, just as events may be connected by causality, they may also be connected by meaning. Events connected by meaning need not have an explanation in terms of causality.

From the perspective of multidimensional, which is having different aspects or selves, existing in different places and realities. Our psychic skills tap into the feeling and knowing of those other aspects. My friend was describing the synchronicity as correspondence, like a two-way communication between aspects of selves. It is bringing in the full knowing from other realities. It is one aspect communicating their perspective through impression or feeling to another aspect, that which is anchored in the human body. The aspect in another place gets to experience this aspect too, and receive knowing from the human self. Synchronicity is the universe speaking to us, and also our higher self or otherselves communication. It shows we are in the flow of the all, ALL of us.

Understanding Past Lives: Meta Perspective

Even if we are behind the veil for the most part, just becoming multi-dimensional, it is like we tie in all these aspects, as the a hub, as I see it. It "lands" or the information lands and is translated through the body. Most of the time we are not even aware of it as this! Synchronicity is getting big in the popular culture. Now synchronicity can expand to an even bigger presence and understanding of what it really is. I watched a movie in a theatre and notice how multidimensional they were in the themes shown in trailers! Wow! I was struck by two new movies as coming attractions that have past/concurrent life themes as if the characters were existing in other realities. One showed a couple that had a different life going on concurrently in the movie, with a similar theme of love and loss. The first movie that made a big impression about the past life theme was Cloud Atlas. Time Travel has been showing up in movies, along with people who stop aging and are immortal. In a way, your multidimensionality allows you to know yourself as eternal and immortal. It becomes obvious that you always were, always are and always will be. Remembering past lives and tapping into your future self through multi-dimensionality lets you move to into past, future, from the present. At least, we bring through the frequency and essence of these lives if not discrete memories. We are starting to live the magic!

Movies are bringing multidimensionality into the mainstream and are a reflection of what many are experiencing. The synchronicity is that this song is playing right now, so I share the words.

Herald the Dawn, song by Murray Kyle,

Oh precious soul, we not take you for granted Honor the seed that we planted Cherish the wisdom that flows from you into this life (precious this life) Oh precious life we not take you for granted Cherish the treasure that we have been handed the wonder of life, that has always been, always been here Come hold it near, ever more to the flame of this soul on its journey wrapped in the cycle of all that is turning Traveling back down the pathway you've taken Behold, into the all unfold

May you be blessed with deep marriage of body with divine, holding all of your magnificent multidimensional self!

PS: Homework Keep a little synchronicity notebook and notice what messages you are receiving. Notice your dreams, your meditations, and what creativity is being offered to you. Notice your intuition and intuitive hunches and how they turn out, like precognition.

The photo was chosen through intuition and it represents a book, The Oversoul Seven Trilogy with seven stones. This book, by Jane Roberts, explains some of the concepts mentioned here from a different perspective and in fiction. It also represents Carl Jung who would build towers of stones at the beach as he contemplated the nature of the universe. It thus seems appropriate and I am grateful for the guidance from the other aspects of me creating this blog.
